

Optimizing your data given the needs of your organization

This session will discuss how to most effectively utilize the data that is available in your organization for a variety of performance management needs. A framework for approaching data use and analysis will be presented and will include examples from a state education agency. Discussion will include a variety of data analysis techniques and will cover the full process of problem identification to communication of results. While the session will focus on data use in education, the topics and frameworks will be highly applicable to the healthcare field.
